INTRODUCTION TO TRAINING COURSES

Promoting SEND and Inclusion

Schools working in partnership with others are vital to the success of SEND provision for their pupils. The 0-25 Code of Practice sets clear expectations on schools to deliver a whole school approach to SEN, with good quality teaching as a first response. Teachers and TAs are at the heart of the SEN support system supported by the strategic role of SENCos, with strong leadership from headteachers and governors. With this in mind the training offered in this brochure has been designed and collated in response to requests from schools and other partners with regard to meeting pupils' needs. The Training Courses within this brochure provide a menu from strategic planning for the whole school to personalised programmes to meet specific needs. In offering these training opportunities it is also intended to promote and develop an increasingly confident and skilled workforce with the necessary skills and knowledge to meet an increasingly diverse range of SEND needs. We recommend that schools prioritise SENCos attendance at the termly SENCos network meetings as this is the key forum for sharing best practice, ensuring they are fully informed and influencing policy development.

Following on from its success last year Warwickshire are offering the 'Making Sense of Autism' (Tier 1) Autism Education Trust Training again (with no cost to schools). The AET is funded by the Department of Education and was founded by Ambitious about Autism, The Council for Disabled Children (CDC) and The National Autistic Society (NAS). It offers a nationally acclaimed, face-to-face, personalised, multi-tiered training programme, supported and quality assured by the Department for Education. The training is named in new Code of Practice as being a leading training provider of schools, whilst effectively meeting statutory regulations and requirements set out in new SEND legislation. Warwickshire Specialist Teaching Service is now an associate hub and able to deliver all elements of the offer. Training can be delivered flexibly to meet individual and groups of school's needs.

While offering places on "open courses" we also provide training in schools to whole school staff and targeted groups. In addition, we are keen to work with schools to design bespoke training to meet your specific needs. The latter can be arranged in discussion with any of our specialist services. Increasingly we have children and young people with a complexity of need that requires a confident, well informed and creative workforce to meet their needs.
