RAIL Trails

Wootton Wawen to Wilmcote

This trail starts at Wootton Wawen station, following the course of the Stratford-upon-Avon Canal over the impressive Edstone Aqueduct to Wilmcote.

Wootton Wawen, home to Warwickshire's oldest church, literally means "farm near a wood, belonging to Wagen", an Anglo Norse lord of the manor a thousand years ago. You can stock up on provisions from the General Stores in Wootton Wawen or wander to Yew Tree Farm, a contemporary shopping village with coffee shop and chocolaterie.

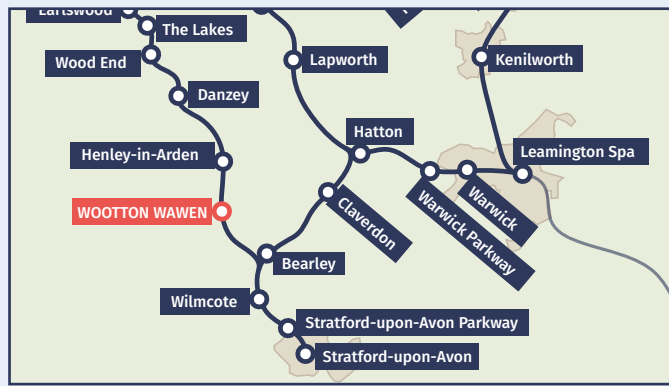

For more leisurely refreshments there's the Navigation Inn or Bulls Head country pubs in Wootton Wawen. Or why not enjoy the stunning views at The View, near the Edstone Aqueduct.

On entering Wilmcote you'll pass Mary Arden's Farm, once the home of Shakespeare's mother and can reward yourself with a cheeky pint at the Inn named after the lady herself!

RAIL Trails

Wootton Wawen to Wilmcote

Trail Directions

2. Turn right along the canal. At bridge 55 the towpath crosses to the left hand side. Continue past lock 39 to reach the Edstone Aqueduct.
3. Continue a short distance further along the canal to bridge 57. Cross it and enter the field beyond. Turn right a short distance to the corner then left uphill with the hedge to your right. Before reaching the top right corner, look for a way mark on a tree by a boggy patch on the right, helpfully covered with some corrugated iron and planks. Go through the bushes to find a stile. Cross this and go half right to a kissing gate in the wooden fence opposite. Continue in the same direction to a gate behind some rubble to a road at a bend.
4. Go ahead along the road for 10 yards then left through a metal gate and go straight on with a hedge to the right. (The OS maps show the path on the other side of the hedge.) Go straight ahead over a cross path in the field corner, and in the next large field walk half left across the middle, keeping close to the bottom of the slope on the left, without actually going up it, to a stile in the far corner. Continue ahead to a stile in the far right corner of the next field. The path then zig zags with the hedge on the right to reach a cross path which goes right through a large gate in a wire fence. Follow this, but do not go over the stile next to the gate ahead. Instead, turn left and continue along two large fields with the wire fence and remains of a hedge on your right.

Did you know?

The canal from Birmingham to Stratford was built between 1793 and 1816. Its most remarkable feature is the cast iron Edstone Aqueduct, the largest in England. A hose pipe used to be connected to the bottom of the Aqueduct and locomotives on the railway below would stop here to fill up.
