Where Stories Breathe (an extract)

By Naomi Mba

*In the quiet of a library,
Possibility speaks.
Shelves full of other lives,
Other worlds waiting
From the moment you open a page
And step in.
Here, stories build courage,
Facts teach flight,
Dreams turn to sentences
That finally sound right.
I found my voice through reading, through speaking,
Performing poems in the front room at home,
Mum and dad saying, "you've got something,"
Before I ever knew my tone.
Words became a language I could lean on,
Turning feeling into rhythm,
Putting heart into poems...*
