Farm animals have different needs and requirements than domestic pets. Before you purchase a sheep or pig consider the following points:

Housing

Ideal accommodation involves warm, dry and straw-bedded housing in cold temperatures and a shelter from the sun in hot weather. Farm animals should be kept in a suitable environment – for species specific requirements refer to Codes of Recommendation of Welfare (available on the Defra AHVLA website www.defra.gov.uk/ahvla-en/)

Diet

You need to ensure that your animal has got an appropriate diet and access to fresh clean water. Suitable feed can be purchased from your local agricultural merchants. Once you purchased the feed you must ensure that it is appropriately stored in a clean & dry environment, where no pests or wild birds have access to it. If you keep pigs remember that it is illegal to feed them with waste food or kitchen scraps.

Biosecurity

Farm Animals carry a risk of diseases some of which may transfer to humans. Make sure your animals cannot break free from your premises - do not let them get into direct or indirect contact with other farm animals under a different ownership. Whenever transported in a vehicle a strict cleansing and disinfection routine needs to be followed.

Personal biosecurity of all people having direct contact with animals is strongly recommended.

There are very strict rules surrounding disposal of fallen stock – please contact Warwickshire County Council’s Animal Health Team for more information. Remember that burying farmed animals is illegal.

We are here to help!
