Introduction

During the employment relationship and afterwards, certain decisions may be made in respect of Local Government Pension Scheme (LGPS) members which can impact upon their benefits.

The law provides an opportunity to challenge any decisions which individuals disagree with, through an Internal Dispute Resolution Procedure (IDRP) which is a formal complaints procedure designed to resolve disputes locally and avoid recourse to the Pensions Ombudsman.

The purpose of this guide is to explain how decisions are made and to set out Warwickshire's Local Government Pension Scheme's Internal Dispute Resolution Procedure.

Who may use the Internal Dispute Resolution Procedure

The following people may use the Internal Dispute Resolution Procedure:

- members of the Warwickshire LGPS who currently pay into the scheme
- people who have deferred benefits in the Warwickshire LGPS
- people who receive a pension from the Warwickshire LGPS
- prospective members of the Warwickshire LGPS
- widows, widowers, civil partners, children or other dependants of a person who fell into one of the categories above before he or she died;
- people who think that they either might or should fall into one of the above categories;
- people who do not fall into one of the above categories now but did at some time during the previous six months.

Informal Enquiries

It is important to remember that most problems or queries can be dealt with informally and put right where necessary, without recourse to the Internal Dispute Resolution Procedure. If you are not sure about which benefits you are entitled to, or if you have a problem or query over your benefits, please either phone the number on the letter your employer or administering authority has sent you or contact the Pensions Section in the first instance:

Decision making

Throughout your membership of the Warwickshire LGPS, the scheme rules require decisions to be taken by scheme employers or by Warwickshire County Council as the administering authority of the Warwickshire LGPS.

Such decisions may affect the benefits that you or your dependants may be entitled to receive and are referred to as 'first decisions' in this document.

The key first decisions and who makes them are summarised below:

Employer decisions

- Whether an employee is eligible to join the scheme;
- What elements of a person's pay are to be treated as pensionable;
- Calculating final pay to be used in calculating pension benefits;
- Deciding an employee's contribution rate;
- Deciding an employee's entitlement to benefits on leaving the scheme for whatever reason;
- Exercise of a number of employer specific discretions (e.g. entitlement to early release of pension benefits, waiving actuarial reductions).

Employers may also "decide any question concerning any other matter relating to the person's rights or liabilities under the Scheme".

It is for scheme employers to decide who should make first decisions.

Administering authority decisions

- Questions concerning an individual's previous pensionable service or employment
- Questions regarding the counting of additional periods as membership or crediting additional pension;
- The amount of any benefit, or return of contributions, an individual or their dependants become entitled to under the regulations;
- The exercise of a number of discretionary elements to the scheme that have impact across all scheme employers (e.g. payment of lump sum death grants).

Administering Authority first decisions will usually be made by Warwickshire County Council's Strategy and Commissioning Manager – (Treasury, Pensions, Audit, Insurance and Risk).

First Decisions

When you (or your dependants) are notified of a first decision you should check insofar as possible, that it is based on the correct details and that you agree with the decision. First decisions should be notified in writing and should contain details of who to contact if you are unhappy with the decision and details of the IDRP. Similar information will be given to dependants and/or personal representatives upon the death of a LGPS member.

Complaints

If you are not satisfied with a first decision made in relation to membership of the LGPS, you have the right to ask for it to be looked at under the IDRP. You also have the right to use the Internal Dispute Resolution Procedure if a first decision should have been made by your employer or the administering authority, but it has not been.

You can ask someone to take your complaint forward on your behalf. This could be, for instance, a trade union official, spouse, partner or friend.

No charge is made at any stage for investigating a complaint under the Internal Disputes Resolution Procedure but you will have to meet your own expenses (or those of your representative) including travel costs and postage.

The Internal Dispute Resolution Procedure will not apply in circumstances where the matter is already being investigated by the Pensions Ombudsman or is the subject of existing court or tribunal proceedings.

The Internal Dispute Resolution Procedure has two stages. Many complaints are resolved at the first stage.

Stage 1

If you need to make a formal complaint, you should do so within 6 months from the date when you were notified of the decision. The timescale for referring the matter to Stage 1 is also set out at Appendix A of this booklet.

Your complaint will be considered carefully by an independent person (i.e. someone who has not previously been involved in the matter for consideration) nominated by the body that took the first decision against which you wish to complain. This person is referred to as the nominated person in this document.

Each scheme employer has a nominated person. You should contact your employer for details of their 'nominated person'. Alternatively, you can contact the Pension Administration team who will get this information for you.

For employers that no longer exist, Warwickshire County Council's Assistant Director - Finance (Deputy Section 151 Officer) is the nominated person.

You should make your complaint in writing, to the relevant nominated person using the Stage 1 application form at Appendix B of this booklet.

You should include any information that you consider relevant to your complaint and you can attach any relevant documents including copies of letters you have received.

The nominated person will assess your complaint in light of the scheme rules and the applicable law. You may be asked to provide more information about your case.

The nominated person's decision should be given in writing. They will usually communicate their decision within two months of receiving the complaint. Where this is not possible, you should receive a letter which explains the reasons for the delay and gives an estimated timescale for a decision. This letter is referred to as an interim letter.

If the nominated person upholds your complaint, their decision is binding on the employer or the administering authority who made the first decision, unless you refer the matter under Stage 2 of the Internal Disputes Resolution Procedure.

However, if the decision you complained about concerned the exercise of a discretion by the employer or administering authority, the nominated person may not overturn the first decision but shall decide whether discretion was exercised reasonably. If the nominated person decides that discretion was not exercised reasonably, then they shall notify the person who made the first decision and the decision shall be reconsidered.

Stage 2

You can ask the administering authority to review your complaint where:

- you are not satisfied with the nominated person's first-stage decision
- If you have not received a decision or an interim letter from the nominated person at Stage 1 and more than three months have passed since you lodged your Stage 1 complaint
- If the nominated person told you in an interim letter that they would give you a decision under Stage 1 and more than one month has passed without receipt of that decision.

The relevant timescales for referring the matter to Stage 2 are also set out at Appendix A.

The review shall be undertaken by an adjudicator appointed by the administering authority. The adjudicator is the Chief Executive of Warwickshire County Council (or their nominee) who may seek advice or guidance from external advisers.

You will need to send the administering authority your complaint in writing, using the Stage 2 application form at Appendix B. You should include all of the information that was supplied for Stage 1, together with the outcome letter. You should also set out the reasons why you are dissatisfied with the Stage 1 decision.

The adjudicator will consider your complaint and give you their decision in writing. They will, within two months of the date they receive your Stage 2 application form, either confirm their decision, or confirm when a decision is likely to be reached and the reason for any delay.

When the adjudicator writes to inform you of the decision, they will also confirm whether the decision upholds or replaces the first stage decision and shall refer to any particular legislation relied upon in reaching their decision.

However, if the decision you complained about concerned the exercise of a discretion by the employer or administering authority, the adjudicator may not overturn the first stage decision but shall decide whether discretion was exercised reasonably. If the adjudicator decides that discretion was not exercised reasonably, then they shall notify the person who made the first stage decision and the decision shall be reconsidered.

The adjudicator's decision is final, unless subsequently overturned by the Pensions Ombudsman or High Court.

The Pensions Ombudsman

If you are still unhappy following the Stage 2 decision, you have the right to refer your complaint to The Pensions Ombudsman free of charge.

The Pensions Ombudsman deals with complaints and disputes which concern the administration and/or management of occupational and personal pension schemes.

Contact with The Pensions Ombudsman about a complaint needs to be made within three years of when the event(s) you are complaining about happened – or, if later, within three years of when you first knew about it (or ought to have known about it). There is discretion for those time limits to be extended.

Appendix A – Table of timescales

Your situation	To complain to	Time limit
You have received a decision on your benefits under the pension scheme from your employer/administering authority, and there seem to be good grounds for complaining.	The nominated person under the first stage of the procedure.	6 months from the date when you were notified of the decision ¹ .
You have received a Stage 1 decision on your complaint from the nominated person, but you are not satisfied.	The relevant administering authority under the second stage of the procedure.	6 months from the date of the nominated person's decision.
You made your complaint in writing to the nominated person, with all the information they needed but, 3 months later, you have not received their decision on your complaint or any interim reply.	The relevant administering authority under the second stage of the procedure.	9 months from the date when you submitted your complaint.
You received an interim reply to your complaint to the nominated person, within 2 months of applying to them. Their reply promised you a decision by a specified date but, 1 month after that specified date, you still have not received their decision.	The relevant administering authority under the second stage of the procedure.	7 months from the date by which you were promised you would receive a decision.
Your complaint is that your employer or administering authority has failed to make any decision about your benefits under the pension scheme.	The nominated person under the first stage of the procedure.	6 months from the date when your employer or administering authority should have made the decision ² .
Your complaint went to the administering authority under the second stage of the procedure. You received their decision but you are still not satisfied.	The Pensions Ombudsman.	3 years from the date of the original decision about which you are complaining.

¹The nominated person can extend the 6-month time limit for a reasonable period where there are special circumstances.

²The nominated person can extend the 6-month time limit for a reasonable period where there are special circumstances.
