The Eiffel Tower is shorter in winter than in summer

The Eiffel Tower is made of iron, which expands in heat and contracts in the cold. In warm weather, the tower grows by as much as 6 inches, and also leans slightly away from the sun.

A day on Earth is longer than a year on Venus

The rotation of Venus is very slow, making a full rotation only every 243 Earth days.

Penicillin was originally called “mould juice”

Alexander Fleming accidentally discovered penicillin, the world's first antibiotic, when he left a petri dish out in his lab. He called the liquid “mould” until he analysed it and discovered the mould was from the penicillin

There are 2,000 thunderstorms in progress at any given moment

About 16 million thunderstorms happen around the world every year, only about 10% of those are considered severe. While they're most common in the evening in spring and summer, thunderstorms can happen anywhere and anytime
