What is carriageway resurfacing?

Carriageway resurfacing involves removing the top layer of the road and replacing it with new surfacing material to restore the condition of the road.

These works typically include:

- Removal of the existing worn surface
- Repairs to any localised defects
- Laying new asphalt surfacing
- Reinstatement of road markings and ironwork where required

These improvements will:

- Provide a smoother and safer surface for road users
- Improve skid resistance and overall road safety
- Extend the life of the carriageway
- Reduce the need for more extensive repairs in the future
