

Appendix 20

Digitized by Google

The image shows a single page from an antique manuscript. The page is filled with dense, handwritten text in a Gothic script, arranged in two columns. The ink is a dark brown or black, with occasional red ink used for headings and some marginalia. The paper is aged and yellowed, with some foxing and staining. A small metal clip is attached to the bottom left corner of the page. In the bottom right corner, there is a rectangular library stamp with text that is partially legible, including "Wren Library Cambridge" and "MS. B. 1. 1. fol. 20v".

This image shows a single page from an antique Hebrew manuscript. The text is written in a traditional square Hebrew script, arranged in two columns per line. A prominent feature is the use of red ink for several headings and certain key words, such as 'אָמֵן' (Amen) and 'בְּרוּךְ' (Baruch). The parchment appears aged and slightly yellowed, with some minor water damage or foxing visible.

The image shows a single page from a medieval manuscript. The text is written in a Gothic script in two columns. A red rubricated section is located in the bottom right corner. The page is numbered '20' in the top right corner.
