It's a selection of witness statements for a case which involved Frederick Smith and the Reverend William Kirkpatrick Riland Bedford, rector of the parish of Sutton Coldfield. The case dates from 1871 and is about a letter allegedly received by the Reverend Bedford from Smith, in which he threatens to murder him. Enclosed amongst the statements is a copy of the letter received by the Reverend Bedford. We have provided a transcription of the letter separately. In it, Smith remarks "you [Bedford] have dunn me and my brother a good dale [deal] of harm"¹. He then curses Bedford and tells him to "look out".

The deposition starts with a statement from the Reverend Bedford, who remarks that he received the letter with his usual post on the morning of 27th November 1871. "I enclosed the letter in an envelope addressed to W. Bloxham the Superintendent of Police at Aston"². In the letter Smith threatens to shoot the Reverend and blow up his house. He goes on to say that he then said nothing more of the matter to anyone. He explains that on the morning of 20th November, he had confronted Smith about his

We then hear from Samuel Bloxham (Superintendent of Police at Aston), Robert Norris (police constable), William Warren (police constable), Henry Baylis (attorney's clerk), Charles Lloyd (builder), Herbert Robertson (writing master) and the Reverend Charles Heaven in regards to the letter.

Frederick Smith did not reply to the evidence, and he then called two witnesses of his own, William Stewart and Thomas Bond.

Smith was committed for trial and bailed, but it is not known what happened to him after this. There is a match for a Frederick Smith living near the Rectory in Sutton Coldfield on the 1871 census, but it is unclear whether this is the same Frederick Smith.

William Kirkpatrick Riland Bedford was born in Sutton Coldfield in 1827. According to Crockford's Clerical Directory, he became the Rector of Sutton Coldfield in 1850. He is still listed in the directories until 1885, where it is also noted that he became Chaplain to the Bishop of Gibraltar in 1881. Quarter Sessions

The Quarter Sessions were set up in 1371 and tried more serious non-capital crimes (crimes not punishable by the death penalty)⁴. They met four times a year, hence the name. These were referred to as Epiphany, Easter, Midsummer and Michaelmas respectively. They were presided over by the Justices of the Peace for the County⁵. Quarter Sessions were replaced by the Crown Courts in 1972⁶.

Typical crimes which were dealt with by the Quarter Sessions courts were divided into felonies and less serious misdemeanours. Punishments for these varied from public whipping to transportation and death by hanging⁷.

The Warwickshire Quarter Sessions minutes (catalogue reference QS39) survive from 1625 and are currently being indexed by some of our volunteers. The depositions, or witness statements (catalogue reference QS30), cover the period 1824-1958 and are currently in the process of being digitised and indexed. If you wish to find out more about the depositions project, then email bytes@warwickshire.gov.uk for more information.
