Mainstream Context

- Like many Local Authorities, Warwickshire has had to respond to a growing birth rate by providing additional primary school places in recent years.
- Since 2012 an additional 3,500 primary places have been provided across the County. These additional pupils will be moving through to secondary schools in September 2019.
- In general these have been spread across the County's main towns, although very few have been provided in the North Warwickshire area. However the local plan is out for consultation and shows increase in housing developments in these areas.
